

Save this

Workflows

Nobody reads your campaign report. They read the decisions.

3 prompts I use to turn charts into a one-page memo.

30 charts → 3 decisions

01 · The rule

The sheet does the maths. AI does the words.

Calculate every number in your spreadsheet first. Then paste the finished table and tell the AI: do not recalculate anything. That one rule removes most of the risk in AI reporting.

02 · The so-what pass

Ask for decisions, not a summary.

Prompt: Using only this table, give me 3 decisions for next month: keep, change, stop. Each with the number behind it and one line on why. Summaries describe.
Decisions get read.

03 · The sceptic pass

Let it argue like the CFO.

Prompt: Act as a sceptical finance lead. Which of these decisions would you challenge, and what number would you ask for? Fix the weak ones before the meeting, not during it.

04 · The what-we-don't-know pass

Say what the data can't prove.

Prompt: List what this data cannot tell us, and what we'd need to measure next time. Clients trust a report more when it admits limits. I've seen that in every honest review.

What changes

OLD REPORT

- ◆ 30 charts
- ◆ Every metric, equal weight
- ◆ Ends with 'learnings'

DECISION MEMO

- ◆ 3 decisions on page one
- ◆ Numbers as evidence
- ◆ Ends with next steps

Save this

Free guide inside

Save this before your next client review.

All 3 prompts, copy-paste
ready, on Build with Vish.

YOUR TURN

What's the one number your boss always asks about first?

Save · Follow for AI x marketing